PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION REPRINT

I am delighted that this useful book is being reprinted and made available under the auspices of the Fort Leavenworth Historical Society.

The only updating in this reprint has been the roster of Commandants and Assistant/Deputy Commandants through the present day. This roster is on page VIII. Hopefully, the period since 1937 can someday be published as another volume.

With the post now in its 155th year and the Command and General Staff College in its second century of service to our nation, I hope this reprint will benefit those of us who strive to learn more about our proud heritage.

HOWARD F. STONE Lieutenant General, USA Commandant

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

The demand for another printing of this book affords an opportunity to bring it up to date. Since the publication of the first edition, another decade has passed, and many changes have taken place not only in the improvement of the post but also in ideas and methods of instruction at the School.

In this Second Edition, the original matter covering the first one hundred years has been left unchanged. However, new material and new illustrations have been added. All appendices have been brought up to date.

The mission of the School remains the same, the training of officers in military science—not for the purpose of waging war, but rather to aid in preserving peace.

CHAS. M. BUNDEL, Brigadier General, U. S. Army, Commandant.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

Fort Leavenworth today enters upon the one-hundreth year of its century of service to the Nation—a service which has been unusually varied and notable.

The history of the Fort seems to typify the way in which our Army has marched side by side with American civilization and helped in its remarkable progress. Like the Army, Fort Leavenworth has been a guardian and promoter of the peace and progress of the country, rather than an inciter to war. As the advance post of white civilization in the prairie country west of the Missouri River, it guarded the beginnings of trade over the Santa Fe Trail. Throughout the period of trade extension and western migration, its activities and its position of readiness furnished a large measure of protection and help to our merchants and pioneers. In time of war, it organized and trained many bodies of troops in support of our National policies. During the last quarter century, Fort Leavenworth has developed a great school of higher military command which has received world-wide recognition for its efficiency.

Fort Leavenworth symbolizes the best traditions of the Army—Preparedness and Service. The Army and the Nation have reason to be proud of its history.

EDWARD L. KING,
Brigadier General, U. S. Army,
Commandant.

INTRODUCTION

THE GENERAL SERVICE SCHOOLS FORT LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS

May 8, 1926.

Fort Leavenworth's approaching Centennial suggests the desirability of making available an outline of the history which has been developed in and around the Post during the hundred years of its existence.

In preparing such a history, Major Elvid Hunt has not only kept in mind the reference purposes of such a book, but also he has suggested vividly the interesting and picturesque part which Fort Leavenworth played during the most important and significant period of American development in the West.

Major Hunt desires especially to acknowledge the helpfulness of a considerable amount of basic material gathered by the late Henry Shindler; the research assistance of William E. Connelley, Secretary of the Kansas State Historical Society; and the valuable collaboration of Ruth B. Hunt. He also wishes to thank the many other friends of Fort Leavenworth who have aided him in the work.

> H. J. Brees, Colonel, Cavalry (D.O.L.), Assistant Commandant.

APPROVED:

EDW. L. KING,

Brigadier General, U. S. Army, Commandant.
